HUB SMART SET ALREADY VISIONING MUSICALES FOR 1930—BETTY ALDEN

Governor and Mrs. Allen's Names on Sponsor List

PROBABLY IN ALL THE gloriously artistic and monetarily successful range of benevolent nothing like the morning musicals at the Hotel Statler has entered the local ken. Valiant efforts, having the keen desire to make these fixtures in the world of the arts, already vision another December when snow flies again and a John Charles Thomas lifts up a mellow baritone in the Statler's imperial ballroom and a large cross-section of the elite settles into enjoyment of a musical treat.

THEY ALSO SEE AN EARLY January day when Percy Grainger will be the soloist, and another of 1930's first days when Miesha Elman will delight with his violin. In fact, the success of next winter's series is much more than a vision in the eyes of Mrs. John W. Myers, and in the eyes of her associates. For even as invitations are going out for next winter's patroness list there is a subscription list most heartening, nearly two hundred having indicated their choice of seats for next winter.

SPONSORS THERE ARE nearly a half hundred distinguished and althogether placed, whose names adorn the subscription list. The Governor and Mrs. Allen head them. And others are: Dr. and Mrs. J. Delinger Barry, Dr. and Mrs. John W. Bartel, Mrs. Gordon Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Brown, Mr. and Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Mrs. Roger Whitcomb, Mr. and Mrs. George Wagesworth, the Edwin F. Webster, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Rev. and Mrs. Henry K. Everett, the Robert Wagesworth, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Prince, the James Jackson, the James Lawrence and Mrs. Henry S. Hunnewell.

BOSTON IS RECEIVING more than kindly the idea that has flourished through so many many seasons in New York, where a Mr. Bagby made morning musicals famous, and in Washington, where Mrs. Townsend's contribution to the Federal City's cultural life and its reward in rich artistry. Furthering musically minded Boston with a series of morning musicals superlatively sponsored, with artists known the world around, giving to Boston season after season its own Bagby.

by morning appears about to be coming a fact. KEENLY ALERT TO EVERY possibility, Mrs. Myers and her executive committee rejoice in one season's musicals that registered so enormously with a musically inclined public, and now plan next season's series as the second of many to come. Tudor Simpkins to Wed Miss Dora Hotchkiss

Miss and Mrs. Dora Hotchkiss. Mr. Simpkins has himself served time without number in the bachelors' squad when brother chubmen have relinquished their bachelor freedom for matrimonial ties. Now he himself plays the second lead in nuptial pageantry, on April 20.

WILLARD SIMPKINS, brother of the bridegroom, is, best man, and from Boston to give residence to the cutaway-boutonniere-wearing squad there will be John Simpkins, Gordon Abbott, Jr., Graf Smith and Nathaniel Hamilton. Antonio Poveri, Jr., and Herman H. Hotchkiss, 34, of New York, complete the ranks. Marriage rites will have the simplicity of a home setting, rather than the severity of ecclesiastical beauty. The bride, Miss Hotchkiss, Jr., has a lovely place at the altar and her daughter will be given in marriage.

SARGENT BRADLEY'S MARRIAGE on April 26 brings another charming New Yorker into the inner circle of Boston's social life. Mrs. Charles White Tripp's daughter, Miss E. Louise Tripp, will be the future Mrs. Bradley, daughter-in-law to the Frederic Bradleys and sister-in-law to Madeline Bradley, Jr., and Malcolm Bradley. The Hotel Ambassador has its Italian Garden and its recherche ballroom for wedding beauty background, and Boston four hundred will be amply represented in the company hidden to see the nuptial knot tied.

School System Evils Indicated

THINKING Americans are completely disillusioned with the public school system of education, in the opinion of Dr. Edward C. Lindeman, addressing the Women's City Club.

Dr. Lindeman, professor of sociology in the College of the City of New York, was presented to 400 members and prominent educators at a dinner meeting at the Twentieth Century Club by the president, Miss Frances Curtis.

"Vice, crime and selfishness were to disappear through the public school system," Dr. Lindeman said. "Such claims have not come true. Today there is more profound discontent among adults than ever before. They see the whole educational structure short-circuited at the most vital point."

"This discontent arises first from their own unfulfilled educational ambitions. And next from seeing the best minds in each community trained for specialists and then turned out to adjust themselves to a static social culture in which no but the third or fourth grade minds are interested—namely, the politicians. Those who do not know how to do anything well turn to running the government and the specialists have to adjust themselves to that standard."

"The whole tendency of education is toward better and better technicians and worse and worse general direction. Even Boston, headquarters for new economic movement a few years ago, has ceased to be a center of ideas and is now a place of routine."

Dr. Lindeman predicted a new industrial culture which will be about as lively and increased populations in cities that will crowd everyone but specialists out of the big industrial center and a great leisure class thus crowded out which must be educated to use their leisure time.

THE central committee of 20 young women who planned the youth conference which satiated and delighted clubwomen all over the country, is to meet tomorrow just to "talk it all over again" as the guests of Mrs. Robert Blood at Fuller St., Swampscott. This committee is to discuss after the youth conference on March 22-23 and will form a committee to carry on the project to a satisfactory basis under the direction of Mrs. A. M. Stone, chairman.

KING GEORGE "BOYISH" King George was as eager as a little boy to see everything along the parade route to the opening of Parliament, Mrs. Herbert Jenkins said. He watched the royal palade closely as they rode in the golden coach adorned with five crowns and drawn by eight horses. He declared that Queen Mary was the most beautiful woman he has ever seen. The Queen started straight ahead but her short, merry spouse looked everything over.

"They say that he always sits on a cushion to increase his height when riding with the Queen," Mrs. Jenkins said. "But apparently he had left that behind on this occasion."

THE club was entertained by the piquant observations of its literature chairman in regard to famous authors she has met. Mrs. Claire Mantis sang a group of songs delightfully. Mrs. Samuel Dale, tea hostess, was assisted by Mrs. Rob the Prelude Club, will furnish the musical interlude at 11:40, and Mrs. Harlan T. Hutton, literature chairman, will broadcast "Tastefully Suggestive Perspectives" for the coming year at 11:50 a. m.

Mr. George Sawyer Dunham, conductor; Mrs. Dorothy Clements Evans, accompanist. Assisting soloists are Estelle Fernald of Milton, soprano, and Hudson Hall Carmody of Boston, baritone. A cantata, "The River of Stars," will be the special feature, being introduced for the first time in New England. State Federation of Women's Clubs will be the guest of the Brookline Women's Club.

Groups of 15 members each will be personally conducted through the new wing of the Museum of Fine Arts by special arrangement made through the art chairman, Mrs. E. O. Kahle. Another party will be made up for a similar excursion next Tuesday.

ER. D. SMITH and Mrs. Isaac O. WEDNESDAY MEETINGS DEDHAM WOMEN'S CLUB Legislative afternoon at Allin Congregational Church, 2:30 p. m. in charge legislative and civics committee. Refreshment, pianist, Mrs. Roscoe G. Frain, hostess.

DIPLOMATS PUT GANN CASE UP TO STIMSON

Washington, April 9 (AP)—Prospects of an early settlement of the capital's social upheaval over the rank of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice-President Curtis, as a guest at official functions, were seen today in the decision of the diplomatic corps to ask Secretary Stimson for a definite ruling.

The diplomats discussed the intricate problems for two hours at a meeting called by Sir James Howard, the British ambassador, as dean of the corps. They agreed that, in view of the protest by Vice-President Curtis against the ruling issued by former Secretary Kellogg placing Mrs. Gann's social rank below that of the wives of diplomats and, incidentally, the wives of Cabinet members and Senators—Sir James should take up the matter with the new secretary.

Because of the large number of social functions planned before the vacation season begins, it was thought that a definite ruling was more desirable than efforts to avoid embarrassment by arranging guest lists so that they would not include both diplomats and the Vice-President.

WHO IS SUICIDE WHO LEFT $250 FUNERAL FUND?

Dedham police today were attempting to pierce the mystery shrouding the body of an expensively-dressed man, which has been unidentified for 24 hours, following his suicide by shooting in Cobb's Grove, off Washington st., Dedham.

The body was found under a tree, while near by was an automatic pistol with one discharged shell in the chamber. There directed a bullet hole through the heart.

In a pocket of the carefully-tailored clothing was a note directing that the person finding the body arrange for funeral and cremation. The note was unsigned, but the sum of $250, apparently to pay for the funeral, was found in the clothing, from which all identifying marks had been removed. Tailor's labels were torn out of the coat, maker's marks from the shirt, and even the sweat band of the hat had been cut out.

The clothing included a dark suit, gray overcoat, black shoes and socks, brown felt hat, white shirt with collar attached, black tie with red spots. The man wore tortoiseshell glasses.

DEATH ASKING SON TO BUY RUM

Brookton, April 8.—Testimony that Mrs. Bridget McFadden of Bridgewater had left 15-year-old son, Leo, arrested as a stubborn child because he refused to get her a gallon of moonshine, was given in local juvenile court today.

Mrs. McFadden, who lives on Plymouth st., made a vehement denial of the charges, and accused Chief of Police James R. Moore of Bridgewater of permitting the case to continue for one week to permit an investigation by F. L. O'Connor of the Department of Public Welfare, and Chief Moore.

In obtaining a complaint charging her son with being a stubborn child, Mrs. McFadden told the clerk of court he would not obey her. In juvenile court the boy and his sister, Marie, testified their mother ordered him to get her a gallon of moonshine, and when he refused she had him arrested.

Square and Compass Club to Entertain

Tomorrow night the Boston Square and Compass Club will entertain its members and ladies with a mixed whisky party.

Saturday night Brother George Demeter, Boston attorney, will deliver an address on "Husband and Wife." To make this an interesting evening, President Terhune has asked members of the club to bring letters asking questions on this subject. No names will be used, but the questions will be answered as nearly as possible by Mr. Demeter. Ladies are invited.

Doherty Named to Succeed Dunning

Springfield, April 8.—Word has been received from United States District Judge James M. Morton, Jr., of Boston, that United States Commissioner Ray P. Dunning has resigned and that Judge W. House Farm Bill Nearly Finished

Washington, April 9 (AP)—The House farm relief bill has been virtually completed by the sub-committee appointed for the task and except for a few details is ready for submission to the agriculture committee, which is to present it to the House. The bill has been made to follow the Republican platform recommendations for a federal farm board to dispense a large revolving fund in loans to co-operative and stabilization corporations.

A new senate bill, however, has been introduced by Sen. McNamara, of Ohio, which is to be taken up by the Senate committee on agriculture.

Britten Announces Naval Arms Parley

Washington, April 9 (AP)—An informal meeting of delegations from five world powers in August to discuss further limitation of naval armaments is described by Chairman Britten of the House Naval Committee, initiator of the plan, as "an assured fact."

The meeting, he says, will take place in Biarritz, France, August 21, or in Geneva August 25. Groups from the British Parliament, Japanese Diet and French and Italian chambers of deputies will attend, he says, in addition to nine or ten members of the United States Senate and House.

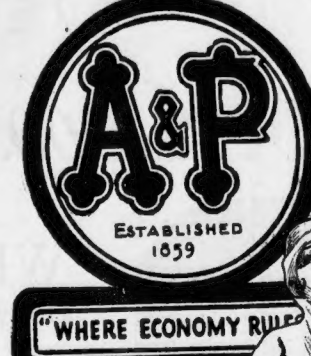

Duke's Son Gets Him a Job With Morgan

Shots Halt Autoist in So. Boston Chase

Caught after an exciting chase through South Boston in which two shots were fired, Joseph O'Connor, 27, of Alexander rd., Dorchester, was fined $200, in South Boston court today for auto violations.

Motorcycle Officer Stockman testified he chased O'Connor at 45 miles an hour and fired two shots. O'Connor pleaded guilty to charges of operating under the influence of liquor and was fined $100; operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public, on which he was fined $75, and operating with no license, on which he was fined $25.

MR. COOLIDGE in Part Two of His OWN STORY tells

Why he did not Choose to Run

WHAT he did to Stop his Nomination at Kansas City—

WHY he did not say he would refuse the nomination if it were tendered to him—

WHY he did not declare for
Hoover before the Convention—

WHY he believes no man should be President for more than two terms—

You May Obtain Part One of the Coolidge Story in Reprint Form

As, of course, you are aware, there has been no magazine feature in our time which attracted such universal and favorable attention as has Mr. Coolidge's fine human story. The only unfortunate feature in the situation is that so many persons eager to read the document were unable to do so because the April edition of Cosmopolitan was swept from the news-stands almost overnight. This despite the fact that we had greatly increased our printing.

Six days after publication we had received orders for additional copies from more than 1900 cities. After ten days it was impossible to fill another subscription order. Copies were recalled by wire from Canada, but still the supply was insufficient. Some greedy dealers were selling the few copies they had left for as high as $1.00 a copy.

Mr. Coolidge naturally desires that all who want to read his story of the Presidency should have the opportunity.

That also is the desire of Ray Long, Editor of Cosmopolitan, to whom Mr. Coolidge intrusted his historic manuscript for publication.

Rather than disappoint friends and readers, we have reprinted Part One in pamphlet form and you may have a copy for the asking.

Address Cosmopolitan Magazine, 57th Street at 8th Ave., New York City. (Please inclose 4 cents in stamps for postage on each copy desired.)

THESE are important revelations; important to you and to every member of your family. As Mr. Coolidge tells them in May Cosmopolitan, they are not only important but thrillingly interesting. For this second installment of his story is as humanly written as was his opening chapter in April Cosmopolitan.

It is, as Ray Long says, one of the great human documents of our time. Mr. Coolidge deals with events of great importance in a manner so direct that at times it is almost breath-taking.

For instance, you find that he believes no man can be President for eight years without having his head swelled by the constant adulation with which he is surrounded, and that is his common-sense reason against a third term.

His story is alive with similar human, down-to-the-ground observations. Mr. Coolidge is an American writing to Americans in the clearest American they've ever had the opportunity to read.

We advise you to buy your copy of May Cosmopolitan today—there won't be enough by many thousands to supply the demand.

As you buy your May issue, place an order for the June issue, in which Mr. Coolidge begins "The Scenes of My Childhood," the real story of a real boy who didn't dream he was destined to be President.

Calvin Coolidge Chose Cosmopolitan Because—

Mr. Coolidge, as President of the United States, had better opportunity to study the journals of the country than any other man in public or business life. He was in contact with great publishers. He met outstanding editors and writers.

He chose Cosmopolitan because he recognized it as a permanent part of the nation's life; and because, in his own words—"When you pay 35c for a magazine, that magazine takes on in your eyes the nature of a book and you treat it accordingly."

American Business Chooses Cosmopolitan Because—

Cosmopolitan's influence with the intelligent families of America makes it—in the judgment of advertising executives—outstandingly the magazine in which to advertise products designed for good homes. Cosmopolitan's advertising records show that such is their conclusion. The April issue carried the biggest volume of advertising in Cosmopolitan history. This month, Cosmopolitan also breaks its May record for advertising revenue.

Mr. Coolidge desired American families to share his message around the reading-lamp. American Business seeks to reach and influence families who appreciate the best.

Both chose Cosmopolitan

TYPICAL GIRL QUEST GAINS FAVOR

Among the letters of nomination received by the Boston Evening American in its quest for the Typical American Girl many are written by relatives of the candidates. Scores of brothers have paid high tribute to their sisters in nominating them in the quest for the "Typical American Girl."

Herewith we publish an equally interesting nomination of a girl by her sister.

"I wish to recommend my sister, Dorothy F. Gleason of Lowell, as a 'Typical American Girl.' She is 5 feet 8 inches in height and weighs 138 pounds. She has dark, short, blonde hair, blue eyes and an olive complexion. She is 18 years old and is a senior in Lowell high school. She is really interested in sports, excelling in skating and tennis."

This writer, too, feels that her candidate is worthy of the title. "Typical American Girl" with the award of $5000 and a trip to Europe offered by the Hearst Six Magazine.

NOMINATES FRIEND

The nomination of Miss Anna Whiston, 222 Atlantic, South Boston, has been received from Miss M. C. Nelson, 5 Hancock st., Everett, who writes as follows: "It's a pleasure to nominate this charming young lady who has an extremely mild and sweet manner, and is a type wonderfully well adapted to fill the requirements necessary in this contest."

"She is a senior in St. Peter and Paul's high school in Boston. She has a very attractive appearance, height 5 feet 3 inches, dark brown hair, exquisite complexion, hazel eyes, and a most charming manner."

RECOMMENDS DAUGHTER

A mother in Milis, Mass., Mrs. E. C. Stone, Forest rd., sends the nomination of her daughter, Agnes. She says: "Have been undecided a long time about entering my daughter in your 'Typical Girl' Contest. I'm thinking it over. I have decided to try Agnes Stone. She is quite blonde with long hair and good complexion, blue eyes and quite good features. About five feet tall and weighs 105 pounds. Age 22 years. She is very fond of outdoor life, likes skiing, walking and skating and is fond of reading. Bored in Maine and a true blue American of many generations. To be sure, she hasn't a college education, but a good high school one. Is a stenographer in a "state street company" in Boston, Mass.

Hoping she will pass as a 'Typical American Girl.' Nominations remain open until midnight, Saturday, April 13. Candidates who have no photographs of themselves may have them made without charge by communicating with the Quest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Room 201.

CHAPLIN FIGHTS BIG MOVIE MERGER

By JIM MITCHELL, Universal Service.

Hollywood, April 9.—Charlie Chaplin plans to withdraw from United Artists and sell his motion picture in the open market, according to current reports. Rumors of disaffection among members of United Artists are said to spread within a few hours after meeting Sunday afternoon at Pickfair, home of Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, at which a proposed merger of a number of companies were to be used upon.

Chaplin quit the group, after fully declaring he would never merge his company with the other seven or eight represented, nor agree to the plan to sell a half-interest to Warner Brothers.

Gets 6 Months After Battle With Police

Following a battle with three officers, Samuel Bonina of Ross ave., Braintree, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Kenneth Nash in Quincy court today. He was charged with non-support of his wife. Feltonian, Fournier, Foch and Belyea arrested Bonina after he had brandished a knife and dented them, they said.

Silver Slipper Her

Symbol of Charm

Versatility is Ruth Smythe's mid-day name, and the silver slipper is her symbol of charm. Young in years, but well versed in the art of terpsichore, she has been chosen to appear in three distinct numbers at the entertainment to be given at the Current Events Club house in Hyde Park, this afternoon and evening of Saturday, April 27.

Ruth will take the leading part in the "Tiller" number, will star in the pajama quartet and will be principal toe-tapper in the raccoon dances. She lives with her parents at 163 Blue Hill ave., Milton.

BANKER BACKS ONLY 4 MORE DAYS FOR FLAG CONTEST

COME TAX RELIEF PLAN

John J. Martin, president of Exchange Trust Co., has joined the long list of public spirited citizens who have endorsed the nation-wide movement for a downward revision of the federal income tax law as it applies to earned income.

Martin is heartily in accord with this movement, which is being supported by Hearst newspapers throughout the country and which has the backing of thousands of men and women in every walk of life, who believe the time is at hand for relief.

"I am heartily in favor of a reduction of taxation on earned income," said the bank president. "I am not very much interested in the fellow who lives on unearned income."

"I am interested in the man and woman who earn their income and live upon it. They are the creative forces of this wonderful country of ours and are largely responsible for its real prosperity. They spend the money they earn, and as a class are the persons in whose well-being the government should be concerned. Everything within reason should be done by the government to relieve this vast class of some of their tax burden."

"It seems to me that the present deduction of 25 per cent allowed by the government on earned income is not sufficient, considering the wide difference between earned income and investment income. The former represents the labor of the people, the latter accumulated wealth of other days or of speculation."

Niblo Sees for $160,500 by Indicted Tax Advisor

Los Angeles, April 9 (AP)—Fred Niblo, motion picture director, was sued for $160,500 in Superior court here by Edward H. Hayden, Hollywood income tax advisor, who is under indictment in federal court for charges of defrauding the federal government in preparing income tax returns for motion picture celebrities.

Hayden charges that in testimony before the federal grand jury Niblo attempted to shift the blame for the alleged irregularities in Niblo's income tax report and that of the director's wife, Zola Niblo, screen actress. Hayden claims that because of the resulting indictment his credit, reputation and health have been injured.

A plea of not guilty to the income tax charges was made by Hayden.

Coolidge Denies Cuban Trip Plans

Northampton, April 9.—Former President Coolidge indicated that he had made no plans for a trip to Cuba in connection with the inauguration of President Machado, May 20. Through his secretary, he replied that he had "heard nothing about it" when advised of reports from Havana that he was expected to visit there.

Free Woman in Death From Twilight Sleep

Albuquerque, N. M., April 9 (AP)—Miss Bertha Lips, former head of New Mexico Girls' Welfare Home, was acquitted by a jury here of charges of manslaughter which grew out of the death of Helen Haskew, an 18-year-old inmate of the home, following an injection of "twilight sleep."

Saloon Man Escapes Shots of 2 Gunmen

Providence, R. I., April 9 (AP)—John Aurilio, 42, alias Jack Riley, proprietor of a near-hour saloon at North Providence, was the target of two gunmen when he stepped from a diner near the border line of that town and Pawtucket. Nine shots fired by the assassins failed to find their mark.

$50,000 Damage in Dover-Foxcroft Fire

Dover-Foxcroft, Me., April 9 (AP)—Damage estimated at $50,000 was caused by fire which swept through the Chandler Block, a two-story wooden business building, here. The block contained four stores on the first floor and several offices and an apartment on the second.

New safe sure way of Science—ends Corn pain instantly!

AVOID DANGER OF CUTTING YOUR CORNS
NO RISK OF ACID BURN TO THE TOES

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads

The very moment you apply Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads, corn pain stops. You never need anything so quick-acting, so soothing and healing. Zino-pads remove the cause of corns—friction and pressure of shoes—and relieve and heal—the only scientific way to treat corns.

No danger this way as with "cutting" your corns, or using harsh liquids or caustic plasters that expose the toes to acid.

Put one on—the pain is gone!

Kindness to Animals Urged With Posters

Hub College Students to Attend Conference

More than 4000 posters illustrating kindness to animals, made by children in the public and parochial schools of the State, have been submitted in the prize contest of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, according to President Francis H. Rowley today. Three hundred and fifty-six schools in 136 cities and towns are represented. The best of the posters will be exhibited in the Boston Public Library next week.

Participants in the Flag Contest are warned that their essays and lists of answers must NOT be sent to the Flag Contest Editor of this newspaper. Such offerings must be turned over immediately upon completion to the person sponsoring the local contest under which the boy or girl is working.

Only four more days remain for the boys and girls who are contestants in the grand patriotic flag contest now being conducted by the United States Flag Association for submission of answers and essays.

The essays and answers to the questions in connection with the flag contest must be in the hands of the heads of the local contest units not later than Friday, April 11.

Therefore, you can readily see that it is for your benefit that your research work, relative to the 25 questions is a finished product and that your accompanying essay be likewise. Keep in mind when you are completing the hardest part of the contest, that YOU may be one of the two youths in America to participate in the two week Pilgrimage to the patriotic shrines in America, and a trip around the world as well.

In Paris you will recall that the beautiful home of Mme. Ganna Walska and her own theater will be at your disposal.

Virginia Enjoins New Express Agency

Richmond, Va., April 9 (AP)—The State Corporation Commission today denied the Railway Express Agency, Inc., permission to do business within this State. The right of the agency, which took over the property of the American Railway Express Company, to do interstate business, is not affected by the order.

Curtis Exhibits His Great Eyesight

Bowie, Md., April 9 (AP)—Vice-President Curtis has remarkable eyesight. Half a mile from the grandstand a horse reared his rider. "Broke his bridle," remarked Mr. Curtis. Other race experts could not detect the reason, even using binoculars. Mr. Curtis never uses them except to oblige photographers.

Daves Is Mentioned for Ambassadorship

London, April 9 (AP)—A report that the name of Charles G. Dawes, former Vice-President, has been submitted for the approval of the British Government as American Ambassador in London was met at the foreign office with the statement that it was unable to give confirmation or denial.

Malden Opens War Against Mosquitoes

Malden is planning to war on mosquitoes. A citizens' committee of A. A. Livermore, H. T. Conway and Mrs. R. M. Kirtland has been named to gather data to aid the city government in its battle against the pests. They plan to experiment with the use of the colorant as a means of inducing the mosquitoes to leave Malden.

Sinclair House by CHARLES G. BOOTH

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

Gail Hollister, sent to Colonel Coniston, a collector and owner of the famous Coniston estate, to tabulate his inventory, sees Kerry O'Neil, a handkerchief over his face, holding a two men in a car. Later she meets Coniston, sees the jewels, and goes to bed. The men Kerry tried to hold up are Victor Hill and his father, diamond merchants, who sought to buy the jewels for $300,000. Kerry had an interest in the gems, and thinks the Gills have them. He is mistaken. Gail finds Coniston dead. Kerry appears. She knows he will be executed. She persuades him to flee.

CHAPTER 2
Gail met the three men with a coolness that astonished herself. There was no sign of Dimity. Mrs. Wessels hovered in the background. The senior officer addressed Gail curtly.
"I am Bartlett of the sheriff's office. We got a long distance call that Colonel Coniston had been killed. Did you kill him?"
"Why, no!" Gail exclaimed in surprise. "Aren't you from the village?"
"The village? Certainly not; we are from the sheriff's office at St. James. Who called?"
"I don't know," Gail said in bewilderment.
"Who found him?" asked Bartlett.
Gail shuddered. "I did. I came down from my room about four o'clock and found him lying there."
"Why did you come down from your room?"
"I couldn't sleep. I had a feeling there was something wrong, and I got up. And I saw a man in the garden."
"A man?" Bartlett appraised the definite. "Can you describe him?"
"He was tall and fairly heavily built. I might recognize him if I saw him again."
"Did you leave everything as you found it?"
"I did."
"Was this cord around his neck when you found him?"
"Yes," Gail admitted unthinkingly.
"Why did you cut it?"
"The question came like a shot. Gail trembled but she held her head up. No sooner and she made the admission than she realized the consequences of Kerry's thoughtlessness. Bartlett had assumed that she had cut the cord. She dare not contradict herself.
"You knew he was dead," Bartlett went on, sternly. "Why didn't you leave him alone?"
Gail dropped her eyes. "I'm sorry. He looked so pitiful lying there... like that. Does it matter?"

Bartlett now turned his attention. Upon the table lay a small Venetian hand mirror, a pair of earrings, and a bracelet, a bronze inkstand, writing materials, and a writing pad with brown covers. Behind the table stood a swivel chair upholstered in leather. Two other chairs were drawn up in front of the table. Behind, and a little to the right of these two chairs, was the door of the vault. Later on the setting of the room as it was at that time was to become vivid in the memory of everyone there.
Bartlett dropped into the chair behind the table and pointed to one of the other two.
Bartlett drew on his cigar thoughtfully. "If you were a crook," he went on, "would you call this a likely looking crib?"
"I might," Gail admitted.
"Why?"
"Well, there's the Coniston inkstand."
"What are they?"
Gail explained.
"Coniston showed them to you, eh? Did he tell you what they are worth?"
"Colonel Coniston said he was offered three hundred thousand dollars for them last night."
Bartlett whipped out his cigar.
"Conrad Gill, the Los Angeles broker, I believe."
"Old Gill, eh?" Well, he's the boy with the money. You sent Coniston to return the stones to the vault?"
"I did."
"And look it up?"
"Yes."
Bartlett grunted. "My bet is they are not there now. Do you know if any one else called on Coniston last night?"
"Gail's hands clenched beneath the table. This was the question she had dreaded more than any other.
"I believe Mrs. Wessels said there was some one else."
"A young man, Miss O'Neil, and a queer one at that, as I told you?"
"No, sir, I haven't."
"Have you?" addressing Dimity.
"No," he said in his thin voice, "I never saw him before."
Bartlett meditated. "Had Coniston any relations?"
"The name Norman Barker, his nephew, sir," Dimity went on, vaguely. "He lives in Los Angeles."

"How long have you been with Colonel Coniston, Dimity?"
"It must be a matter of thirty years. I loved the Colonel. Please turn to Page 12, Column 2."

SINCLAIR WILL BE REAL JAIL BIRD

College Students in Rum Rebellion Refuse to Do Dry Spy Duty

Charlottesville, Va., April 9 (JNS)—There is in American history what has popularly been known as "the whiskey rebellion." It took George Washington and federal troops to put it down.

Something very akin to that "rebellion" has broken out in the student body of the University of Virginia. The whole row broke into the open today when it was revealed members of the Delta Psi Delta fraternity have refused to assist authorities in stamping out collegiate drinking and may lose their chapter charter.

The trouble started last Thanksgiving, when a Fredericksburg pastor attending a football game publicly "doctored" the drinking at the game and asserted he saw scores of drunken students.

The traveling secretary of the Delta Psi Delta, after an inspection of chapter houses, reported open drinking in the Delta House here and that liquor was being made the collar. As a result the parent organization is considering revocation of the chapter's charter for violation of the bylaws concerning liquor drinking in chapter houses.

Death Starts Federal Probe of College Rum
Charlottesville, Va., April 9.—A score of members of the Lambda Iota Fraternity at the University of Vermont are scheduled to appear tomorrow before the federal grand jury in New York to give information about bootlegging at the college which resulted in the death of a member of the student body.

No Action Planned in Firing on Ship
Officials of the United Fruit Co. will take no action in regard to the firing on the steamship Juan by a coast guard cutter in Chesapeake bay last Friday at the company's offices in Boston today the report of the incident was received from Baltimore. The captain of the Juan will bring the matter to the attention of the Norwegian consul in that city.

The amazing discovery that it is impossible to get a prescription filled in Boston after 2 a. m., even at a hospital, was made by a former British officer now staying at the Hotel Statler with his wife, who was suddenly taken ill.

He toured Boston in a taxicab trying to get medicine prescribed by a physician and which was urgently needed.

It was after 6 o'clock in the morning before he found a drug store open, and later on by telephone he verified the fact that from 10 to 2 o'clock in the closing hours for all hospitals turned him down flat because his wife was not a patient there.

The next day the doctor gave him a list of places where he could have found open, but I called every one on the telephone and found they close at 10, 12 or 2 o'clock.

Commerce High Graduates Meet
The class of 1929 of the High School of Commerce held meetings in the Boston City Club. The 75 meeting was a smolder, at which Paul Gold presided as moderator.

Davis Is Fly-Hungry
Washington, April 9 (AP)—James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, would like to own a plane. The trouble is he isn't wealthy enough. He revealed his ambitions after a weekend of flying.

STARVED GIRL SEEKS $25,000 FOR LOST LOVE

Boston police are today endeavoring to discover the circumstances which indirectly are responsible for the fact that a girl, giving her name as Catherine King and her address as this city, collapsed on Broadway at 100 ft. New York city.

Catherine, who was picked up by a policeman and taken first to the Knickerbocker Hotel, explained that she had nothing to eat for two days; that she had been evicted from her room by a landlord who wanted her unpaid rent; that she had previously lost a job as a typist because of illness; and that the contributing circumstance to all this was that her step-father, who had outlived her mother, had driven her from his home in Boston.

SECOND SECTION

NO SPECIAL FARE FOR SINCLAIR

By EDWARD R. LOCKETT, International News Service Staff Correspondent.
Washington, April 9.—From a 40-room house to an eight-by-ten brick cigar box with a single barred window.

That's the astonishing transition facing Harry F. Sinclair, multimillionaire oil magnate, sentenced to serve 90 days in the District of Columbia jail.

Through the lower courts his trial for contempt of the Senate Tariff Deme oil investigating committee has wound its tortuous way, only to end in his defeat in the Supreme Court last week.

There'll be no special preparation for Harry Sinclair at 200 Nineteenth st., S. E., where the big red jail stands. It expects the oil magnate for two weeks or a month, depending on whether his counsel elects to make a seemingly futile appeal.

In all the man used to gold plate will eat with a tin knife and fork, from a tin plate. The man who showered as he pleased, with two bath a week, he has to take 'em.

He must get up at 5:30 daily, eat a breakfast of cereal, milk, coffee and bread, and go to work. At noon, with the aid of the prisoners he will come in for lunch, a bread and butter. After his evening meal Sinclair will be free to read or otherwise amuse himself in his cell, until 9 o'clock.

The millionaire prisoner will be able to buy cigarettes, candy and paper in the jail store as do the rest of the inmates. Things other than these he cannot have. Friends cannot send him tempting caviar or other delicacies, and all his money will not buy him for him.

THE CURIOUS QUIZZER

Every day he asks a question and pictures these questioned.

THE QUESTION
Do you think it is possible to get a State patrol to do with a traffic violation, and instead of on the state highway, a tremendous revenue source from these sources contribute a large part to the upkeep. And with the membership a n. 2, any one of the which would be ready to fill a vacancy as it arose. The State patrol is one of the most powerful agencies in the law and order on the highway and up to now not enough recognition of their service has been awarded them.

LOUIS CHENEY, a former Brookline Three days, what a traffic violation, and instead of on the state highway, a tremendous revenue source from these sources contribute a large part to the upkeep. And with the membership a n. 2, any one of the which would be ready to fill a vacancy as it arose. The State patrol is one of the most powerful agencies in the law and order on the highway and up to now not enough recognition of their service has been awarded them.

GENE ADIS, South Huntington, Conn., thinks it is a dandy idea, giving the State patrol the means to add more men to the State patrol. There are enough highways and their services should be taken up. What with the prohibition and prohibition violations on the highways, the State patrol is playing an active part in the protection of the country. But the crime and lawlessness which prevails today can be given unless the State patrol is given more money that they might train more men for permanent and temporary places.

NATHAN LANDY, 345 Broadway, Such a measure should merit with instant approval. The force which patrols the highways and supplies traffic to the mild, boys for field work and over again since they reap well from the harvest of motor cars. The Government ought to consider such a measure that would afford membership to the patrol.

JUSTICE DEMANDS REDUCTION IN TAXES ON EARNED INCOMES

"THIRCE is he armed that hath his quarrel just." The demand that taxes on EARNED INCOMES be reduced is an ABSOLUTELY fair and JUST demand.

A man owning an oil well or coal mine is allowed each year to deduct something from income tax on his profit, because his well is wearing out, worth less from year to year.

Isn't the doctor, lawyer, business man, school teacher earning an income and paying an income tax also WEARING OUT, and WORTH LESS FROM YEAR TO YEAR?

One man inherits a fortune, does nothing in the way of work to get the income. He gets a coat of Winter tan at Palm Beach, then crosses the ocean for a coat of Summer tan on the Lido.

He goes shooting grouse in Scotland. Then hurries off to catch tarpon in Southern waters.

He gets on his yacht to explore strange places, or visits the Monte Carlo roulette wheel.

Meanwhile his income keeps pouring in, money for which he never worked, income for which he does nothing. When he dies, the same income will go on to his children.

Should the man who stays working, in America, pay as heavy a tax on income that represents his life blood, as the man that does nothing?

Secretary Mellon expressed the feeling of all just men when he said over the radio:

THERE IS A GROWING
DEMAND FOR FURTHER
REDUCTION IN TAXES ON EARNED INCOME.*
A POSITION WITH WHICH I HAVE ALWAYS BEEN IN SYMPATHY.

"I have always been in sympathy with the demand for reduction in taxes on earned income."

Shakespeare's line, from KING HENRY SIXTH, above, "Thirce is he armed that hath his quarrel just," is followed by two other lines, encouraging to those that demand fairness in income taxation.

"And he but naked, though locked up in steel,
Whose conscience with injustice is corrupted."

Justice is more powerful than any weapon in the long run, and able to pierce through any selfish armor. Marlowe said it before Shakespeare:

"I'm armed with more than complete steel—
The justice of my quarrel."

Helped a Policeman

And 17 Months Afterward Nathan Margolis May Be Paid
for Personal Injuries and Wrecked Automobile

For the information of motorists and others the widest publicity should be given to the fact that Governor Allen has given his approval to a law passed by the present Legislature authorizing cities and towns to "compensate persons who sustain personal injuries, or property damage, while assisting a police officer upon his requirement."

You have forgotten the name, but the new law is a belated result of the Margolis incident.

On the thirteenth of November, in the year before last, the automobile of Nathan Margolis of Mattapan, with the owner at the wheel, was "commandeered" by a Boston policeman for the purpose of chasing a suspected criminal.

Traveling at 50 miles an hour, the car struck and killed a pedestrian, Timothy J. Scannell, of South Boston. Margolis narrowly escaped death. His car was wrecked. Former Registrar Goodwin lent him a letter of sympathy and, as he believed the law compelled him to do, revoked his license. The Department of Public Works upheld Mr. Goodwin.

The Committee on Claims of the City Council was unable to do anything for the surviving relatives of young Scannell. The Police Department was unable to help Margolis, who, when he came out of the hospital, was compelled to wait six months for a new license to drive.

The question was asked, what might the policeman have done if Margolis had refused to join him in pursuit of the supposed gunman? The answer was that the law prescribes one month's imprisonment, or a fine of not more than fifty dollars. The legal aspects of the case attracted the attention of the city's law schools and, it was said at the time, had the class "dizzy."

It is good to have the Margolis case settled, in so far, at least, as concerns the right and power of the City Government to settle the resultant claims.

NO more payment of money, of course, can restore Timothy Scannell to his family.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MARTHA ALLEN is a fine woman, but she gets people's goats. She's honest, generous, capable, sensible, loyal, kind—

But she blanks all these splendid qualities by a lot of irritating, childish habits which exasperate those who would otherwise love and respect her.

She talks too loud—
And too much.

She gets upset over trifles—
She's always late for appointments—

She's very untidy—
She has nervous spells, when she fuses and fidgets—

She's embarrassed when she meets strangers and does odd things, giggling or being actually rude—

In spite of her good nature she loses her temper easily—
These are only surface faults in a rich nature but they prevent people from knowing the real Martha.

They rob her of much of the joy and power which is rightly hers. And the pity of it is, they could all have been eliminated so easily in her childhood.

These faults are really baby faults, signs of an unadjusted, undeveloped character.

Children talk too loudly and too much because they are self-centered. They are not yet oriented to the adult world. They do not know how to handle themselves and they make a noise to hide that confusion. They are embarrassed when they meet strangers for the same reason. They are secretly afraid of strangers.

Children get upset over trifles because they have not yet learned a sense of values. They cannot discriminate between trifles and matters of real importance.

Children are late for appointments because they have not yet learned the value of programmed time—they are untidy because they have not learned the value of order.

Children fuss and fidget because their minds are not yet broken in harness. They are still at the mercy of their own emotions, like little wild animals. They lose their tempers easily for the same reason. It is their animal defense against a world which they have not yet learned to control.

All of these faults are part of normal childhood and should be outgrown with baby teeth and all its ills.

They relate to the plain mechanics of character-building.

All the parts of a character must be brought into alignment just as the parts of a machine must be brought into alignment.

Without proper alignment a machine, or character, "binds." Martha's irritating little faults are "binds" in her character and they spoil the whole performance.

Wise training eliminates binds in a child's character. A child can be taught to meet strangers, control his temper, be tidy and polite as easily as he can be taught to wipe his nose or say "thank you."

That teaching should come during the years when life is simple and young nature plastic. Correct performance will then become automatic for the child as for the soldier.

And, in the later years, power will not be wanted by "binding" in the mechanism of behavior.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALICE MICHAELS
WITHOUT regret I count the hours flown, though they were swift as sweet to chance ear
I regret me of my own or bring my hopes deferred. My own, my tears and triumphs await for me, with steady step they come to seek me out, wherever I may be. As wanderers seek home, I do not fear to suffer any loss, though it be great or small; whatever is my own, of gold or dross, the years will bring me all!

New York Day by Day - By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 9.—The collapse of night life along Broadway and its "gayways" is a curious phenomena to those who have watched the gambling cascade for years. It was not a sudden debacle, but instead a gradual drift of pleasure seekers to new amusements—new

There are still nocturnal haunts, and the whine of jazz is almost as pronounced as ever, but it lacks the old-time enthusiasm. The familiar faces are missing. Broadway after dark is not exactly Main Street after curfew, but the wall-top is kitted powered.

Two years ago there were a half dozen places where stay-outs gained admittance by bribing an imperious head waiter. Today it is seldom necessary to phone for an advance reservation. The clubs are as gaudy, intimate and just as well, but the customers are coy. One of the contributing reasons for the White Way detour was the madman and doctory Kithkuhn, fostered chiefly by tabloid iniquities, but countess of philanthropists. Night club patronage is an extent by the more sedate feuilleton. And for these on a romp for the evening to read next day in the columns of gossip which of their didoes is putting it mildly, slightly disconcerting. Such items as: "Joe Egan, a man, and Doty Kithkuhn of the Police opened the 16th quart in the Club Kazoo at 4 a. m." were frequent.

There are always unlovely glances, too, who delight in clipping out such notices. The phlegmatics of this type were the heavy sugar boys who made it possible for hostesses to buy diamonds and limousines. Without them, a night club crises.

So it was the keyhole exposures drove the occasional and high-sounding playboys to hideaways where derelictions would not be juicy tidbits for gossip mongers. The new sanctuaries are intimate and discreet, and who's in is nobody's particular business.

There were, of course, other reasons for the night club flop. It was well known, for instance, that one popular rendezvous employed no bouncers and that who went got. Bouncers inspired defiance.

comfortable chairs at jammed up tables. Even the hostesses became standardized — extravagantly dressed, glittering with jewels, husky voiced and featuring wide hips against a sallow background. They did not even offer youth. But simulated youth by shouting and throwing things. If they passed your table they left no impress of an engaging personality but instead a nagging whiff of extravagant perfume. They mocked life with ribald jests at night and spent their days in beauty parlors fighting off that terrible specter—old age.

"SOMEBODY told me," writes G. S. F. "you would for eight years without selling a single line." Something like that. They called it McIntyre's Folly. And you'd be surprised how many still think it is.

There is a story that Helen McGowan, who means all her manes from a piano top, sits on the piano most of the time even when she is in her own apartment. There are many others we'd like to see sitting on the piano instead of playing on it. (That's not very good, neither was the Irish Rose, and look how it took on.)

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

It is in the nature of foolish reason to seem good to the foolish reasoner.

"What is to some sad and bitter, may seem to others particularly sweet."

Children's sweetest labors; but they make misfortunes more bitter.

Snobbery is the pride of those who are not sure of their position.

Faith in something is an absolute and vital essential to the life of every woman.

Do not be ashamed to say what you are not ashamed to think.

Kindness is very indigestible. It disagrees with very proud stomachs.

Methinks wisdom is oftentimes nearer when we stoop than when we soar.
